WHAT WE BUY ABROAD.

The United States during the year 1872 imported foreign goods to a greater value than during any previous year. The imports for the year amounting to the large figure of $677,144,579 in gold—over eighty-seven millions more than during 1871. Of this immense importation about one-fifth came in as free goods, being chiefly the raw materials of foreign production, and the other four-fifths paid duties, and these duties were the chief source of revenue of the Treasury during the year. Of the aggregate importations only sixteen millions came into the country overland from Canada and Mexico.

It is instructive as well as interesting in examining the details of this enormous importation to find how largely foreign countries contributed to our stores of goods, and what diversified articles they send us. The greater portion of the import trade, however, is usually made up of a few classes of staple articles, and more than one-half of the imported values for 1872—some 350 millions of dollars—was composed of sugar and molasses, coffee, cotton, woolen and silk goods, and of iron and steel and manufactures thereof. The heaviest importation was of sugar and molasses and their manufactures. The value of these articles was over ninety millions of dollars, being nearly one-sixth of the entire trade. The second was wool and woolsens, of which we imported nearly eighty-two millions, iron and steel were third in the list, England and Germany sending us nearly sixty-two millions. The fourth article was coffee, of which we got over twenty millions, the fifth, cotton goods, thirty-five and a half millions. These six classes of articles made up more than one-half the import trade of last year.

There are several other articles of which we also receive large amounts from abroad. Thus of tea during 1872, we imported over twenty-four and a half millions; of hides and leather, twenty-eight millions; of flax and linen goods, nearly twenty-three millions, and of nearly twenty millions worth of tin, over seven millions, and of foreign woods and furniture, eleven millions. There were nine million dollars' worth of foreign wines imported, and a little more than that amount of Cuban tobacco and cigars. We got nearly ten millions' worth of breadstuffs. Of foreign crockery, nearly six millions came in, and nearly seven millions of foreign glass. We also took over seven millions of India rubber, whilst the growth of our silk factories is attested by an importation of nearly seven million dollars' worth of "raw silk."

Some smaller items also are of interest. We imported more than a million and a quarter dollars' worth of foreign jewelry, a million and a half of precious stones, and three and a half millions of watches and watch materials. Over two millions of spices came in, and nearly four millions of flaxseed. That we are at peace (except with the Moslems) is attested by a saltpeetre importation of $384,000. Salt came in to the value of a million and a half. Maine and New Jersey flaxseed, which grows abundantly in those States, was imported 138,000 bushels; and the American hen will probably demand more "protection," when she learns that last year over five million dozen eggs came from abroad. A half million pounds of berries from foreign countries show that the American hog will have to look after the safety of his hide. There is also food for speculation in the inquiry as to what was done with 31,000 tons of imported brimstone, and that eggs are of value is attested by an importation of nearly 112 millions of pounds. Nearly a million dollars' worth of "human hair" was imported, and this was accompanied by a half million dollars' worth of perfume to dress up the natural article. Coffee drinkers, who prefer the pure article, will regret to learn that four million pounds of chicory figure in the list of importations. That buttons are numerous as well as useful, is attested by an importation of over two and a half millions of dollars' worth. A million dollars' worth of sardines and nearly a third of a million of salad oil came in. We also took a million's worth of foreign musical instruments. Somebody bought and others doubtless drank over two million gallons of English ale and German beer, three times the quantity of the previous year. Judging to the extent of $1,711,000 pounds came in for the washbasin and other purposes, whilst that plaster of Paris is used for something more than casting images is attested by an importation of 115,000 tons. Of wines in bottle there were no less than 7,046,970 bottles brought in last year, at an average gold valuation (without duty) of about fifty cents a bottle, which is an interesting fact for wine consumers to know, considering that it costs them from two dollars to four a bottle.
